

Samurai, Daimyo, Matthew Perry, and Nationalism: Crash Course World History #34

- 1) Identify the global phenomenon of how a country's national awakening adds to its spread of nationalism.
- 2) Outline the types of nationalism that represent the worst aspects of nationalism.
- 3) Define the modern nation-state by outlining the differences between a nation and a state.
- 4) Identify the differences in arguments between how one becomes part of a nation by demonstrating the cultural and ethnic differences of the state in question.
- 5) Elaborate on the actual business of nationalization.
- 6) Explain how wars help to further national identity.
- 7) Outline a quick history of the Tokugawa bakufu (period of the Tokugawa shogunate samurai rule) which ruled Japan during the 17th through the 19th centuries.
- 8) Why do some people such as Andrew Gordon in his book, A Modern History of Japan (2013), believe that urban samurai were a rough and tumble lot?

9) Show how the Tokugawa Shogunate, aka Tokugawa Bakufu, had difficulty controlling the great lords, aka daimyo.

10) Explain the repercussions of the Opium Wars (1839-1860) on Japan.

11) Who was Matthew Perry and why did the Japanese sign trade treaties with him?

12) Explain how nationalism was implemented in the modernization of Japan.